OUR HIDDEN WEALTH.

The Observations of a Tourist Through
This Section.

Dr. G. M. Ockford, of Lexington, just returned from a trip to the mountains of Southeastern Kentucky, and says:

"It is one of the richest that has been my lot to visit. I have visited the coal fields of Pennsylvania, been down among the mineral resources of other sections, but in no place have I ever seen such surface indications of mineral wealth as in the Kentucky mountains.

"There are valuable deposits of iron iron in Estill and Menifee counties. The old Estill furnace, which was built in 1881, is still operated, and its products in constant demand for car wheels. It produces a superior quality of iron, and, although it costs $2 per ton to move it eleven miles to the railroad, at Clay City,
the industry is a paying one.

"From the Kentucky Union Junction
the rate to Lexington is 75 cents per ton, and to Louisville $1.60 per ton. Under such circumstances, a direct road to the mines would enable the iron to be placed in Lexington at a much less rate than the cost of putting on the cars.

"There is a good vein of bituminous coal, which crops out at Beattyville, on the Kentucky river, and extends through Lee and Wolfe counties, appearing in thick veins near the headwaters of the Middle Fork of Red river. The veins at this point are nearly five feet in thickness. It appears to be the same vein of coal which extends all through these hills, and it is a very high grade of coal. As we near Breathitt county we find veins
of cannel coal, which extend as far southward as the Cumberland mountains.
The veins in Breathitt vary from twenty-two inches in thickness, and some veins further south measure upwards of eight feet.

"There is no way to transport it. There are no good wagon roads in that section, and the only method of travel is by horseback or ox cart. Both of these are decidedly too slow for this century and the coal interests can never be thoroughly worked until railway transportation is provided.

"There is a mine thirteen miles South of Jackson and it is from a vein thirty-seven inches thick, seventeen of which is cannel, seventeen splint, and three inches bituminous. Now, all these coals are good. The splint can readily be lighted with a match, and makes a first-class fire. The bituminous is hardly as good as the Lee and Wolfe county coal, but still is equal to most of the Kentucky coal sold in this market. The cannel is the only portion sent to the market, the splint not worth the cost of transportation. The mine is situated two miles from the river bank, and these two miles, carriage has to be done with oxen over a rough road. Then after getting to the river, frequently time is consumed waiting for high water, for there are shoals in the North Fork that prevent boats loaded heavily passing down when the water is low. Before railroads were built, numerous mines were worked all along the Kentucky river, and its precarious navigation was not considered to be seriously objectionable.
But as other coal districts became connected with railroad systems, the river route was discontinued and gradually abandoned.

"Near the river banks the forests have been materially thinned out, but back in the interior forests exist in almost their natural denseness. There is a fine tract of white pine extending from Powell, through Wolfe, into Menifee. It contains 70,000 acres, and is of immense value,
being the only tract of white pine found in the United States South of Michigan, and you know the Northwest is being denuded of its forests rapidly. In Breathitt and the counties south there is considerable walnut and a grand lot of poplar, ash and other mountain timber.
Of course, I did not examine all the timber critically, but I saw enough to convince me that it is decidedly valuable.
Another thing that is often overlooked is the valuable salt beds in Clay and other counties. There was a time when the Manchester salt works supplied this country, but the time has gone by when a merchant could get on his horse and ride two or three hundred miles for a bag
of salt, and consequently the salt interests have all declined.

We admire the cunning and shrewdness of England's financiering. She makes gold the only standard, renders

"The valleys and bottom lands are extremely fertile, and even the mountain sides and tops have in many places a good, deep soil. The country has never been taxed, for all the inhabitants care
to raise is sufficient for home consumption. There is no way to get out of many of the mountain valleys save on foot or in the saddle, and neither of these methods
is very satisfactory in moving surplus farm produce. The crying want of the country is efficient means of transportation, and with these once established, Southeastern Kentucky will rival the farming counties of the State in the proficiency of its productions, and surpass many sections that are now considered superior in their resources."

THE WORLD'S SILVER,
The Circulation of Which the National Banks Are Trying to Deprise Us.

The Director of the United States
Mint estimates the coined silver circulation of the world at $112,000,000. More than half the human family have no other money! The annual silver production of the world is $117,500,000, of which $6,500,000 is converted into coin, the balance is used in the arts. The silver products of this country is about $5,000,000 are converted into articles of utility and ornament.

It is estimated that about one-twentieth of the silver coin is annually lost by abrasion, wear and casualties; an amount in excess of the annual addition by coinage.
The world is not likely, therefore,
to be deluged with silver. The United States produces $50,000,000 of the $117,- 500,000 of silver, of which one-half we convert into coin.

What a grand harvest our National bankers would have if the coining of silver was suspended and they were allowed to substitute their debts to fill the vacuum! It is said that the Sub-Treasurer at New York is an enthusiastic advocate of the scheme to transfer the silver bullion market from London to New York by dealing in it as other commodities, and making bullion certificates the basis of financial speculation. Of course by the suspension of silver coining the speedy demonetization of the metal would soon follow. We denounce the conspiracy of capitalists to drive silver money from circulation as a high crime.
Ours is the principal silver-producing country of the world, and its chief value
consists in its being converted into coin, yet bankers and money-lenders are intent upon destroying this great source of wealth and instrument of exchange.

To secure the cooperation of those engaged in agriculture these conspirators refer to the fact that the price of wheat is regulated by the bullion value of silver.
That as silver declines in price, wheat declines in corresponding ratio. If this is true, what will be the effect upon the wheat market if silver is demonetized and this metal is left to the bulls and debtors? Of course its price will be merely nominal to suit the convenience of the people in their small daily transactions, but
the Government issue certificates upon
the deposit of coin, which, with Treasury notes, will constitute an ample, safe
and reliable circulating medium, without
the aid of interest bearing bankers'
debts.

National bankers wish to supply their paper based upon the credit of the Government in place of silver and silver certificates. To make up any deficiency in the circulation by reason of a dearth of coin and coin certificates we demand that the Government shall issue its own notes, based upon its own credit, without the intervention of banks. Secretary Chase, after deplored his agency in creating our banking system, predicted a terrible conflict in the future between the people and the banks.

The National banks have commenced hostilities by making an assault upon silver coin, the money of the masses.
We hope the people will be prepared to met the enemy on their chosen field of battle.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Trouble Ahead.
When the appetite fails, and sleep grows restless, and irregular, there is nothing else to do. The digestive organs, when heavily charged with food, the nervous system, when vigorous and tranquil, gives its possessor no uneasiness at night. A tonic is to be effective, nor are the nerves to be strengthened and promoted by the unaided action of a sedative or a narcotic. What is required is a stimulant, and the nerves to be strengthened and promoted by the aid of a tonic.
Such a tonic is the Extract of Hostetter's Stem Bitters, a medicine whose reputation
is founded firmly in public confidence,
and which physicians and druggists recommend for all diseases and other complaints.
It is used with the best results in fever
and ague, rheumatism, kidney and uterine weakness, and other maladies.

On the other hand, if our Government would establish the unlimited coining of silver England would have to pay par value for grain in India, which would enable our farmers to compete with India in the wheat markets of Europe. It is then clearly to the interests of American farmers that silver should be appreciated in price relatively to gold, which can only be done by its unlimited coining.

silver a cheap commodity, converts it into the money of India and then gathers
up the broadsides in a depreciated coin at par. If the bullion gamblers of London can transfer to New York City, and still further, depreciate the bullion
value of silver, destroy its use as money,
they can close the markets of Europe upon against our cotton and and broadsides, gather their supplies from their own dependencies, at a reduced cost, and pay for them in a depreciated coin. Will the American people be guilty of the superstition of the money lords of England and of our own country who are confederating together
to rob the producing classes of all countries?

The only way to defeat the robbers is for the United States to maintain its metallic standard, and coin without limitation or restriction both gold and silver.

If the three billions of silver coin were striken from the world's circulation incipient, what havoc and desolation would follow! All property, real and personal, would depreciate in price more than one-half, the limbs of labor would be paralyzed, destitution and starvation would be the portion of the working classes, and bankruptcy overtake all men of enterprise. The holders of gold and bankers would gorge themselves with the wealth of the world. To the extent that our American financiers are allowed to carry out their plan these disasters will be invoked. A great banker in New York says he sees no reason why silver should not be bought and sold like grain and oil.
We see a thousand reasons why silver should not be made a mere article of merchandise, and we are assured that it can not be accomplished in any other way but by suspending its coining and forcing its demonetization. One of the thousand reasons, we believe, sufficient to array the people against the villainous design. With all the silver and gold which is available for coining, the world's supply of money is inadequate of the needs of our rapidly increasing trade and commerce. If we have too much of either coin to suit the convenience of the people in their small daily transactions, let
the Government issue certificates upon
the deposit of coin, which, with Treasury notes, will constitute an ample, safe
and reliable circulating medium, without
the aid of interest bearing bankers'
debts.

BLOODY ROWAN.

Two More Killings Added to Her Criminal Calendar.

Another "little shootin' scrape" took place in Rowan county Tuesday, about three miles west of Morehead, in which only two men were killed and one dangerously wounded. The facts as we have been able to gather them are these: W.
H. W. Logan and Jackson Logan, sons of Dr Henry Logan, who is now in the Lexington jail charged with conspiracy to kill, etc., Coon Logan, John Pilgrim and Nathan Fowles were charged with kukluxing, and a warrant of arrest had been issued against them for this crime upon the affidavit of Hiram Cooper, who says they had given him a written notice to decamp. John Mannin, Marshal of Morehead, Mr. Hogg, Deputy Sheriff of Rowan, and posse went to make the arrest. They went to the home of the two first named Logans and finding them
driving in their horses from the pasture, they made known their business, when the Logans ran into the house and went up stairs. The Marshal, Sheriff and posse went to the house and asked them to come down and surrender, but they refused to do it.
Then Marshal Mannin said he would go up and get them, and started.
He got as far as the foot of the stairway,
when he was greeted by a load of buck-shot, which took effect in his left shoulder, inflicting a serious if not fatal wound. Mannin returned to his crowd one of whom lighted some straw or shavings and threatened to burn the house
if they did not come down. This scared
the Logan boys (W. H. W. and Jackson) and they made a break for liberty, shooting at the Marshal, Sheriff and guards as they ran, when the whole posse fired and literally riddled them with balls and buck-shot. There were at least fifty shots fired.

in Morehead, and has never figured in any factional difficulties. Clegg Tolliver was his opponent in the race for Marshal.

HAZEL GREEN, - KENTUCKY.

TO MY WIFE.

Lacy, don't you hear the voices, gentle voices in the air;

Like the whispering of a pinion, like the panting of a pugnacious dog,

Like a song of singers dead,

Like a dream of beauty fed,

When we can not quite remember what the angel voices said?

Oh, the voices of the Yesterdays! Time's melancholy echoes,

With the twilight singing minor and the dawning singing air,

—Whispering voices—soft, clear, sweet—

—Brown with scratches bound,

And a million golden minutes straw-like grew upon the ground.

Ah, they must be up the river, and it can not be a dream!

The wind is blowing soft, my love, is blowing down the stream,

And is wafting to your ears

What your listning spirit hears,

Till the world grows dim and dimmer through the mist of many years.

And a little form in white seems to rise beyond the mist.

And a little hand to beckon and a little voice commands,

Your heart a moment pressed.

Then away to be a guest,

And to sing among the Angels in the Gardens of the Blest.

For the little infant spirit that a brighter angel bore,

A dark angel challenged at the threshold of the door,

And he burst it back again,

From the mornin' rain To the heaves o'er the mountain and the glory o'er the main.

In his arms the angels clasped her, and as he turned and smiled

He crowned you there, the mother of a sinless angel child.

Ah, the beauty that she wore,

Born so swiftly on before,

Just to the Heaven for "welcome" to that bright and radiant shore.

But, Lucy, 'twill be by and by, when Junes have followed June;

And many a sad December has played a solemn tune;

When the snow upon your hair

Forgets to melt and lingers there,

And form so frail and faded trembles in the old arm-chair.

Then here's thy hand, my dearest; we'll travel on together,

In days both clear and cloudy, in rude and rainy weather;

Till we find at last the east

Set in the shadows eastward east

And our lives and loves forever shall be blighted with the past.

OR—

The Story of a Young Girl's Struggle With Adversity.

BY JOHN E. MUSICK.
AUTHOR OF "THE BANKER OF BEDFORD,"
"WALTER BROWNFIELD," ETC.

[Copyright, 1896, by A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Co.]

CHAPTER II.—CONTINUED.

"Did you never see a bird with a crippled wing, and see how poor little thing tried to fly and couldn't? Well, I tell you as he is, he's got down that girl. Every now and then, makes, goes to support herself, 'tis the child."

"The breakfast bell rung, and Pete did not complete his sentence.

That morning Warren noticed that the eyes of the hired girl who was sacrificing herself for her crippled brother, were very large and blue, and her forehead was broad and high, and her features were regular. She was neat and tidy, and did not look at all like the sloven kitchen girls he had seen. Her hair was golden and neatly gathered in a net. There was a sweet sadness upon her face, which touched him not a little, when he remembered that all her earnings barely supported herself and her brother.

"Warren Stuart married the girl as a common mortal, and yet there was something about her. He seldom saw her, save at mealtime, when she came in to wait upon the table. She knew a servant's place, and kept it. She was modest, almost to shyness, and seldom spoke, never unless compelled to do so. Commonplace as he supposed her to be, one day thought he discerned a poetic sadness in the large, dark blue eye, as she stood like one in a reverie. The kitchen work at Stuart's was no very small matter, and it required all her time and energy to accomplish her part. She was nearly always busy, and frequently when he saw that sad worn face, and tired little form, he felt a sympathy for her.

One evening after the day's work was done, he was passing the kitchen where Helen would insist on staying, and heard her engaged in an animated conversation with her brother. It was a simple conversation such as a child might understand about Heaven. Little Amos was asking his sister if he should be relieved of his infirmities there, and whether or not he would see his mother and father. The answers of the girl were low and sweet, assuring the little cripple that he would suffer no pain there, and would meet those who had gone before. Simple and commonplace as the conversation was, it had something about it which affected Warren's intention to remain at home during the summer, and early in the fall seek a location to enter into the practice of his profession. It was now the busy season for farmers, and he did not meet many of his former friends and acquaintances. The second Sunday after his return was the day for preaching in the Sandy Fork schoolhouse. The Methodist had taken in one of their circuits, and sent Rev. Allen Blaze, a famous "gospel pownder" to preach there once a month. The school-house was about three-fourths of a mile from Mr. Stuart's and down the creek known as Sandy Fork. It was well hidden in the trees and the road to it led through the forest. The new preacher was very popular and his audiences were always large. Now infrequently the school-house failed to hold them and many stood outside at the door and windows.

Peter Stair, the peddler, had been his rounds and dropped in at the Stuart's the night before the Sunday when Mr. Blaze was to preach.

"You'd better go'n 'head him," said Peter to Warren. "He's a regular stormer, I tell ye. He can make things blaze, too." His sermons are all wool, hand-made and warranted not to fade. You can hear one on Sunday, and it'll keep a ringin' through ears all the rest o' the week just like one time at a dance. Besides, some times right a feller out o' his boots. He raise yo' so high ye can most git a bird's-eye view of the New Jerusalem."

I SUPPOSE YOU HAVE COME BACK A PUZZLED DOCTOR?

Warren consented to go, and the next morning the horses were hitched to the wagon, himself, his father and mother and sister got in and drove off to the school-house. The other two boys went on horseback, preferring a gallop through the woods to the case and comfort of any wagon or carriage.

"Why, hellion Warren, how are you?" said Mr. Arnold, the moment he alighted from the wagon in front of the school-house. Mr. Arnold dropped the stick on which he was whittling to take Warren's hand. He was a man a little over medium height, somewhat slender, with sandy hair and whiskers, which were only on his chin, and cropped short.

"I suppose you have come back among us a full-fledged doctor?" he went on to say.

"That remains to be seen, Mr. Arnold," said Warren.

He was now surrounded by the old men and young men of the neighborhood, each extending to him a kindly greeting.

Warren was a sort of favorite in the neighborhood, and all were glad to see him back. Mrs. Arnold, and even her daughter, Miss Hallie, a sprightly little creature with a somewhat florid complexion and hair, and a face considerably freckled, came to him and insisted so earnestly that he should go home with them for dinner that he could not refuse. There was an old woman at the door after she had done her day's work and put little Amos to bed.

"But why did you not go with mother and sister in the carriage?"

She made no answer to this and Warren bit his lip. There was room for the minister, his wife, and even Peddler Pete, but this poor girl, who was an angel on earth, after toiling all day Sunday, was compelled to walk a mile and a half to church. The neglect of his parents, however, had given him the blessed privilege of Helen's company, and he had discovered how precious she was to him.

We will not attempt to record their conversation. It was not of love, but love itself. Both knew it, both felt, yet both struggled against it. The old man at the door was reached too soon, and he conducted Helen, much against her desire, to the sitting-room, where his parents and their visitors were.

Bad a bomb-shell exploded in the room to the astonishment of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart, could not have been greater. Warren was sure there was a frown of anger on the face of his father, and a

there. The sermon from beginning to end seemed inspired by the acts of heroic self-sacrifice of that girl. Mr. Blaze did not know there was such a person in existence, yet to use one of Peddler Pete's characteristic expressions, his cloth was cut for any measure.

Why had he not before noticed that this real heroine was wasting her life for her little brother, was the thought that came to Warren's mind; "I will see my father and mother about it." When preaching was over Mr. Blaze and his wife consented to go home with Mr. Stuart, and Peddler Pete being there, the wagon was full without Warren.

"Never mind me, father," he said, "I've got a nice walk and the moon shines brightly." The truth is, our young doctor preferred to walk alone, that he might better digest the discourse he had been hearing.

I had insisted on walking in his stead, but he would not hear of it, and the wagon rolled on with its human freight, length and the others four feet each.

TEMPERANCE.

IN GREAT BRITAIN.

WHAT HAS BEEN done to combat the Temperance agitation.

Intemperance in Great Britain reached its high spirit mark—in 1876. In that year the estimated drink bill of her thirty-three million people was $735,000,000, or $35,000,000 more than the estimated bill of fifty-five million people!

Had this rate of expenditure continued, England's bill last year would have been $805,000,000. So much is this for financial statistics.

This decrease in the consumption of liquor has been due to the increased number of total abstainers.

HAZEL GREEN HERALD.

HAZEL GREEN, - KENTUCKY.

TO MY WIFE.

Eacy, don't you hear the voices, gentle voices in the air?
Like the singing of a pioner, like the panting of a prayer.

Like a song of singers dead,
Like a dream of beauty fed,
When the world remembers what the angel vision said!

On the voices of the Yesterdays! Time's melancholy choir,
With the twilight singing minor and the dawning of glory.

With the clouds of gloomy round,
And their brows with paroxysms bound,
A million golden minutes strewn like grain upon the ground.

Ah, they must be up the river, and it can not be
For the wind is blowing soft, my love, is blowing down the stream.

When I wait for your ears
When I listen for your spirit-hears,

Till the past grows dim and dimmer through the mist of many years.

And a little form in white seems to rise beyond the rain.
And a dark angel challenged at the threshold of the door.

And he bade it back again.

To your heart a moment pressed,
Then away to a guest.

And to sing among the Angels in the Gardens of the Blest.

For the little infant spirit that a brighter angel bore,

A dark angel challenged at the threshold of the door.

And he bade it back again.

As returns the morning rain

To the heavens over the mountain and the glory of the sun.

In his arms the angels clasped her, and as he turned and smiled.

He crowned you there, the mother of a sinless angel child.

With the beauty that she wore,
Horn so swiftly on before,

Just to learn the Heaven for "welcome" to that bright and blessed shore!

But, Lucy, 'twill be by and by, when Junes have come.

And many a sad December night has played a solemn tune:

When the snow upon your hair
Is about to melt and fingers there,

And form so frail and faded trembles in the old arm chair.

Then here's my hand, my dearest; we'll travel on together.

In days so clear and cloudy, in rode and rainy weather;

Till the winter at the last

Shall the shadows eastward cast

And our lives and loves shall be blended with the Park.

The Story of a Young Girl's Struggle With Adversity.

BY JOHN R. MURRAY,
AUTHOR OF "THE BANKER OF BEDFORD,"
"WALTER BROWNE," ETC.

(Copyright, 1888, by A. N. Kelley Newspaper Co.)

"Did ye never see a bird with a crippled wing, and see how the poor little thing tried to fly and couldn't? Well, this child, good as he is, holds down that girl. Every cent she makes goes to support her little child."

The boy was well brought up, and Pete did not complete his sentence.

That morning Warren noticed that the girl of the broken wing, who was sacrificing herself for her crippled brother, was very large and blue, and her forehead was broad and high, and her features were regular. She was neat and tidy, and did not look at all like the sloven kitchen girl he had seen. Her hair was golden and neatly gathered in a net. There was a sweet sadness upon her face, which touched him not a little, when he remembered that all her earnings barely supported herself and her brother.

CHAPTER III.

AT CROUCHING THE MOONLIGHT WALK.

Warren Stuart regarded the girl as a commonplace mortal, and yet there was something a little more than common about her. He seldom saw her, save at mealtime, when she came in to wait upon the table. She knew a servant's place, and kept it. She was modest almost to shyness, and seldom spoke, never unless compelled to do so. Compliment as he supposed her to be, he one day thought he discerned a poetic sadness in the large, dark blue eye, as she stood like one in a raverie. The kitchen work at Stuart's was no very small matter, and it required all her time and energy to accomplish her part. She was nearly always busy, and frequently when he saw that sad worn face, and tired little form, he felt a sympathy for her.

One evening after the day's work was done, he was passing the kitchen where Helen would insist on staying, and heard her engaged in an intimate conversation with her brother. It was a simple conversation between a child might be asked about his infirmities, and whether or not he would see his mother and father. The answers of the girl were low and sweet, assuring the little cripple that he would suffer no pain there, and would meet those who had gone before. Simple and commonplace as the conversation was, it had something about it which affected Warren. It was Warren's intention to remain at home during the summer, and early in the fall seek a location to enter into the practice of his profession. It was now the busy season for farmers, and he did not meet many of his former friends and acquaintances.

Mr. Peidler, his master, was then preaching in the Sandy Fork school-house. Mr. Peidler had taken this in one of their circuits, and sent Rev. Allen Blaze, a famous "gospel pounder" to preach there once a month.

The school-house was about three-fourths of a mile from Mr. Stuart's and down the creek known as Sandy Fork.

It was well hidden in the trees and the road to it led through the forest. The new preacher was very popular and his audiences were always large. Not infrequently the school-house failed to hold them and many stood outside at the door and windows.

Peter Stair, the peddler, had been his rounds and "dropped in" at the Stuart's the night before the Sunday on which Mr. Blaze was to preach.

"You'd better go'n hear him," said Peter to Warren. "He's a regular stormer, I tell ye. He can make things blaze, too. His sermons are all wool, hand-made and warranted not to fade. You can hear one on Sunday, and it'll keep all the rest of the week besides, some time at a dance. Besides, some times he fairly lifts a fellow out o' his boots. He raises ye so high ye can most git a bird's-eye view o' the New Jerusalem."

"I SUPPOSE YOU HAVE COME BACK A FULL-PLEDGED DOCTOR?"

Warren consented to go, and the next morning the horses were hitched to the wagon, himself, his father and mother and sister got in and drove off to the schoolhouse. The other two boys went on horseback, preferring a gallop through the Woods to the case-wagon, which was a slow conveyance.

"Why, Helen! Warren, how are you?" said Mr. Arnold, the moment he alighted from the wagon in front of the schoolhouse. Mr. Arnold dropped the stick on which he was whittling it took Warren's hand. He was a man a little over medium height, somewhat slender, with sandy hair and whiskers, which were only on his chin, and cropped short.

"I suppose you have come back among us a full-pledged doctor?" he went on to say.

"That remains to be seen, Mr. Arnold," said Warren.

He was now surrounded by the old men and young men of the neighborhood, each extending to him a kindly greeting.

Warren was a sort of favorite in the neighborhood, and all were glad to see him back. Mrs. Arnold, and even her daughter, Miss Hallie, a sprightly little creature with a somewhat florid complexion, and a slightly freckled face, were glad to see him.

She made no answer to this, and Warren bit his lip. There was room for the minister, his wife, and even Peddler Pete, but this poor girl, who was an angel on earth, after toiling all day Sunday, was compelled to walk a mile and a half to church. The neglect of his parents, however, had given him the blessed privilege of Helen's company, and he had discovered how precious she was to him.

"But why did you not go with mother and sister in the carriage?"

She made no answer to this, and Warren bit his lip. There was room for the minister, his wife, and even Peddler Pete, but this poor girl, who was an angel on earth, after toiling all day Sunday, was compelled to walk a mile and a half to church. The neglect of his parents, however, had given him the blessed privilege of Helen's company, and he had discovered how precious she was to him.

We will not attempt to record their conversation. It was not of love, but love itself. Both knew it, both felt, yet both struggled against it. The old

there. The sermon from beginning to end seemed inspired by the acts of heroic self-sacrifice of that girl. Mr. Blaze did not know there was such a person in existence, yet, to use one of Peidler Pete's characteristic expressions, his cloth was cut for any measure.

Why had he not before noticed that this real heroine was wasting her life for her little brother, was the thought that came to Warren's mind; "I will see my father and mother about it." When preaching was over Mr. Blaze and his wife consented to go home with Mr. Stuart, and Peidler Pete being there, the waggon was full without Warren.

"Never mind me, father," he said. "It's only a nice walk and the moon shines brightly." The truth is, our young doctor preferred to walk alone, that he might the better digest the dinner he had just eaten.

Pete insisted on walking in his stead, but he would not hear to it, and the wagon rolled on with its human freight, leaving Warren a-foot and alone. He started briskly down the wooded road, but had gone only a short distance when he almost ran against some one who was tripping lightly along before him.

"Excuse me," he said. There was a timid acceptance of the apology, and the slight form drew back in the dark part of the road for him to pass.

"It is so dark here!" said Warren, in a voice sweetly.

"I beg pardon, but is not this Helen?"

"It is, sir," was the timid response.

"Were you at church?"

"Yes, sir."

"And are now on your way home alone?"

"Yes, sir, but I don't mind it. I am not afraid and the walk is pleasant."

"But you shall not go alone, Helen; I will be your escort."

"Oh, if you please, sir, I am not afraid," the girl said, timidly. "The moon shines brightly, and I do not want to trouble you."

"Nonsense, Helen, it's no trouble to me," he said, laughing, and he took her arm as if she were some great lady.

They walked on and began to talk about the sermon. Warren could not but contrast the depth of Helen's conversation with the shallowness of Hallie Arnold. As the timidity left her she began to converse with a knowledge surprising in a hired girl. Where had she learned so much? was the question our hero asked himself. As they came out into a more open part of the road the moon fell upon her upturned face, Oh, how lovely it looked. The large uncombed hair was ringlets of gold, and the form, neatly, but not grandly, attired, was beautiful.

They were just in the midst of an animated conversation upon the sermon when the moon's rays revealed the real identity of Helen Lakeman. Warren Arnold never had forgotten, and we are assured he will never forget, that he had a right walk. He may have had other happy moments in his life, but this, the first dawn of a pure love, was the happiest moment of his existence.

He asked Helen why she did not go to church in the forenoon, and she answered that having to get dinner she did not have time. She only got an opportunity to steal away and hear the word of God after she had done her day's work and put Little Amos to bed.

"But why did you not go with mother and sister in the carriage?"

She made no answer to this, and Warren bit his lip. There was room for the minister, his wife, and even Peddler Pete, but this poor girl, who was an angel on earth, after toiling all day Sunday, was compelled to walk a mile and a half to church. The neglect of his parents, however, had given him the blessed privilege of Helen's company, and he had discovered how precious she was to him.

We will not attempt to record their conversation. It was not of love, but love itself. Both knew it, both felt, yet both struggled against it. The old and strove to cover his misery. This was the weakest of follies, he knew; but then we are weak creatures.

After finding it impossible to restore the equanimity of his mind, he returned to the house. Now the dear old farm-house seemed doubly dear.

Had the question been asked Warren Stuart: "Are you in love with this hired girl?" he would undoubtedly have answered: "No," though he was willing to admit that she was beautiful as an angel, and possessed the most beautiful qualities of any person he had ever met. Yet there was a certain pride in his nature, which revolted at the idea of his marrying a hired girl. This pride was not dead, and would have to overcome before he could be induced to propose marriage to Helen; but it was numb and might be worn down by any sudden torrent of feeling.

The next morning he was feeling dull and heavy. His brothers had long been up, and were feeding and enquiring their horses, while their breakfast was preparing.

The minister and his wife were going to Newton that morning, and Warren was the person selected to take them.

"I guess if yer goin' to town to-day I'll just go long to take the train for Chicago," said Peddler Pete. "I had better stay 'till noon, runnin' low an' I had better republish just a little."

He and his wife and his wife sat on the rear-seat. Pete, having asked pardon and got the permission to light his pipe, was enjoying a smoke during the morning ride.

The road to Newton was through a rich farming country. Sandy Fork was the most fertile portion of the State. On this delightful spring morning every thing seemed fresh and lovely. The whistle of the plow-boy and songs of the birds made the air melodious. The fields, lately plowed, were black in the richness of their soil, the winter wheat and oats made them look like green canvas paintings. No picture could express the loveliness of the morning, for here nearly all the senses were permitted to drink in the glories of nature's loveliness.

"This is a grand mornin'," said Pete, who possessed not a little poetry in his soul, yet without the ability to express it. "This is a lovely mornin'. Do you know, Warren, what I'm dreamin' about?"

"No," said Warren, whose mind had been occupied ever since they started. The minister and his wife were talking and paying no attention to the driver.

"A certain little gal what works in a gentleman's kitchen to get a livin' for herself an' a triffling brother,"

The shrewd peddler worked and twisted his eyes on Warren.

HOME, FARM AND GARDEN.

—By assorting the eggs, separating the dark from the light in color, a higher price will be obtained for the lot.

—As regards the thinning out of potato tops, we read: If it is a cool, wet season, thinning will do well; if hot and dry, the crop will be spoiled.—N.Y. Witness.

—It was the illustrious Lord Bacon who expressed the opinion that "gardening is the purest of human pleasures and the greatest refreshment to the spirit of man."

—Rain water and soda will take out machine grease.—To take grease spots from wall paper lay over them a paste made of magnesia and benzine.

—To remove oil and varnish from silk, try benzine, ether and soap very cautiously.

—Almond Jumbies.—Three-fourths of a pound of almonds, blanched and chopped fine, one-quarter of a pound of butter, one pound of flour, one cupful of sour milk, five eggs and one-half teaspoonful of soda. Flavor with rose.

—The quantity, condition and amount of wool will depend much upon the vigorous health of the animal producing it. If the animal is not in good health, or if its food has been deficient in quantity or quality in the fleece will be harsh and rough to the touch.—Troy Times.

—Thomas Mehan, editor of the Gardener's Monthly, than whom there is probably no better authority in the country, says: "Our Northern trees—all have had remarkable growthings this year, something as many as a dozen—but the last set of cells in the annual growth are very small, and the first very large, and as a consequence the annual growth can always be determined."

—The Holstein-Friesians are exceedingly quiet, kind and gentle in disposition, a characteristic which is a great desideratum in a profitable cow. By virtue of the strong and vigorous constitution which they possess, they have shown themselves able to withstand climatic changes, and to adapt themselves to the varying conditions of different countries.—St. Louis Republic.

—It takes a year or two for raspberry plants to reach their best bearing conditions, and it is best to start new plants every third year. The average life of raspberry plantations is about six years; by setting new plants once in three years, the advantage is gained of having two sets of plants, one coming into full bearing as the other is going out. Plants may be set either in the spring or fall.

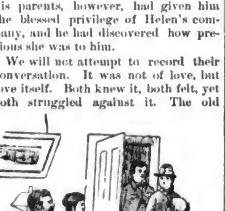

THE DEADLY CROCODILE.

Explorer Stanley describes how it attacks and destroys its victims.

"The most dangerous savage we have to fear," said Stanley, the explorer, are the crocodile, the hippopotamus and the buffalo. We lost five men during my last visit to the Congo from these animals; three were killed by crocodiles, one by a hippopotamus and one by a buffalo. There are large numbers of the hippopotamus along the Congo and its tributaries, and thousands upon thousands of crocodiles. The latter are by far the most insidious foes we have because they are silent and so swift. You see a man bathing in the river," said Mr. Stanley, with one of his graphic touches; "he is standing near the shore, laughing at you, perhaps laughing in the keen enjoyment of his bath; suddenly he falls over and you see him no more. A crocodile has approached unseen, has struck him below the belt, so that it knocks him over, and he is lost, carried and carried off. Or, it may be that the man is swimming, he is totally unconscious of danger; there is nothing to stir a tremor of apprehension; but there, in deep water, under the shadow of that rock, or hidden beneath the shelter of the tree yonder, is a huge crocodile. It has spotted the swimmer, and is watching its opportunity. The swimmer approaches, he is seized by the leg and dragged under and he knows no more! A bubble or two indicates the place where he has gone down, and that is all.—London Telegraph.

How to Build Chimneys.

To build a chimney that will draw forever and not fill up with soot, you must build it large enough, sixteen inches square; use good brick, and clay instead of lime, up to the comb; plaster it inside with clay mixed with sand for chinking tops with the very best of brick, wet them and lay them in cement mortar. The chimney must not be built tight to beams or rafters, as most chimneys settle a little, and if too tight between the beams and rafters, there is where the crack in your chimneys comes, and where the most of the flues originate, as the chimney sometimes gets red hot. A chimney built from the cellar up is better and less dangerous than one hung on the wall. Don't get your stovepipe hole so close to the ceiling, eighteen inches from it.—Builder.

farm-house was reached too soon, and he conducted Helen, much against her desire, to the sitting-room, where his parents and their visitors were.

"Had a bomb-shell exploded in the room at the astonishment of Mr. and Mrs. Smart could not have been greater. Warren was sure there was a frown of anger on the face of his father, and a

There is an evil in this land that ought to be corrected. It is a crying evil. It is the custom of employing teachers to teach our schools just because they are relatives or friends of the trustees or of some influential patron of the school. Men cheat their own children out of their education in order to throw a few dollars into the hands of an unworthy relative or friend. This method is suicidal, homicidal and fratricidal. There is no reason in it. Yet hundreds and thousands of men are in this way defrauding their children. We can not have our children educated and refined without having educated and refined teachers. The sinner does not rise above the fountain. The child will be what the teacher is to a very great degree; in a thousand times greater degree than the masses of men imagine. If our own people are not qualified to teach our schools, let us call for others to come. There are thousand who are qualified, but are standing idle because no man hath hired them. They will come to us if we will support them, and we will get value received for our money. The County Superintendents should take a broad stand against incompetent teachers, and educate public sentiment to the true standard. Examining boards are holding a position that may be exercised for the elevation of society, by keeping out the incompetent. Let us have a revolution on this line—Beattyville Enterprise.

We said in last week's issue that we would give some reasons why we thought a combination of the two schools at this place will be best. In the first place there is not a sufficient number of scholars in the district for two schools. Secondly the managers of Hazel Green Academy deserve the praise and patronage of all for the establishing of this school, and while we believe every man in Hazel Green is proud of it, we think they would better prove their appreciation by patronizing it in some way. Thirdly, we do not believe the free school building is adequate for the number of scholars in the district. The high school building is, and a combination of the two schools will give comfort and convenience, a better system of teaching, and a great many advantages which it is hard to enumerate, not the least of which is the school furniture and other paraphernalia pertaining to educational institutions. We would like to see an amicable agreement on some plan of action looking to the consolidation, and conscientiously believe it will rebound to the benefit of all concerned. Let those gentlemen concerned in the welfare of each institution come together and do the best for the children's interest.

A gentleman from Magoffin informs us that the oil boom in that county is by no means dead. They are only waiting to test a well in Johnson county, which has been sunk to a depth of 1200 feet. It will be "shot" in a few days, and it is confidently expected that it will show a good deal of oil.

James H. Stango, Rollin A. Eash, Morris Pieratt and Mrs. Nannie Herns left here on last Monday morning for Jackson, Ky., for the purpose of attending the commencement exercises of Jackson Academy, which took place Monday and Tuesday nights. They will return today.

LOCAL NEWS & CORRESPONDENCE.

Henry Pieratt will go to butchering in a few days if he can get suitable stock.

Taylor Whaley, who is now employed at Campton, visited his wife and home Sunday last.

GEO. Carpenter of Whitakerville passed through here Monday, en route to Mt. Sterling with a drove of sheep.

Postmaster Evans and wife spent Saturday and Sunday last at Campton. They were visiting the family of Gov. Evans, John's papa.

We had two letters from the Cox Mill neighborhood this week, and regret that we had to leave out "Pap's" letter for want of space.

Lovi Gilly, the old man spoken of in our last issue as being in a dying condition died last Monday night and was buried Tuesday.

We reproduce in another place in this paper, at the request of some of our sub. scribers, "The Dying Californian," a poem addressed to all who have read it.

Capt. Robert, the urbane traveling man of Carter Bros. & Co., Louisville, was in town Friday and sold several good bills. He left for West Liberty and Eel on Saturday.

A new postoffice has been established in Magoffin county this side of Salyerville, which will be called Hendricks. Harris Arnett is the postmaster, and H. G. Arnett's store is the location.

Master Thor Clay Easterling, of this office, leaves today for a week's visit to relatives and friends at White Oak. The citizens of that section should see him while there and subscribe to THE HERALD.

Hon. L. Godsey, formerly of this place, who has been attending Centre College was awarded two prizes at the end of the session just closed, and we know his friends all join us in making the statement that we are proud of him.

The citizens of Campton are trying to raise a fund of $100 to cut down the McNaab hill and make a good road from Campton to Clay City. All the public-spirited citizens of the county should assist in the enterprise.

The following are the registers at the Jay House:

- A. A. Combs, Breathitt county.
- A. D. Cropp, Bath county.
- Thomas M. Jones, Mt. Sterling.
- Br. Bruce Smith, Salyerville.
- Mrs. Ada G. Day, ".
- Thomas Easton, THE HERALD office.
- J. T. Gividen, Bonny.

The hack is now making regular trips to Rothwell Station from this place, and that the proprietors may be enabled to render good service, the public is invited to patronize them. The fare to Rothwell is only 25¢, and you are not annoyed with a horse to hold after the end of your ride. Overseers along the road should put it in good condition and enable the hack to travel it, and for other traffic.

The following are the registers at the Pratt House:

- W. A. Lucy, White Oak.
- Thomas Prater, East.
- S. H. Edwards, Mt. Sterling.
- J. Wm. C. Clark, Mill.
- E. B. Finch, Chocowinity.

BREATHITT COUNTY.

JACKSON, June 9.—The Sunday School Institute met Wednesday, 8th inst. Rev. Mr. Polli having been detained at other points did not arrive on the day appointed, hence the programme for the second day only was carried out. Bro. Polli is a fine speaker and good worker in the Sunday school. He has visited Harlan, Leslie, Letcher, Perry, Owsley, Lee, Knott and Breathitt, this being the last county in his district. He organized conventions in all of the above counties. Rev. T. S. Hubert read a paper before the Institute on Sunday School Festivals, which was a beautiful illustration of the fetal work. The Institute requested him to furnish the secretary a copy of the paper for publication in THE HAZEL GREEN HERALD, Beattyville Enterprise and Central Methodist. Johnson Sheffield of Booneville is in town.

Harlan P. Wilson and Miss Lane Tammie of Red River are visiting Dr. J. A. Taulbee, and will take in the entertainment.

Mr. Rawlins of Mt. Sterling is preparing to burn the briar for Dr. C. J. Little's mansion, which is intended to be a handsome affair. Mr. Little is a judge of good work and a man of taste, and Mr. Rawlins seems to understand his business, hence we anticipate the finest house ever built in the county.

Stephen Hogg of Booneville was in town a few days the present week.

Alex. Patrick, infant son of George and Sarah Patrick, died this morning of infantile convulsions. The parents have the sympathy of the entire community. The burial services were conducted by Rev. J. A. Vance of the Presbyterian Church.

H. A. Rancy and Sam J. Salyer of Mt. Sterling were in town the other night, returning from the upper counties, where they had been on business.

H. C. West of Milwaukee, Wis., was in town and the county a few days last week, looking after his real estate interest.

Dr. Park of our town last week accidentally shot himself in the knee. He is improving, and we hope he will soon be able to resume his practice.

Exposure to rough weather, getting wet, living in damp localities are favorable to the contraction of diseases of the heart and lungs. As a preventive, and for the cure of all these and like trouble, use that valuable remedy, Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm, $1.00 per bottle. Sold by G. B. Swango, Hazel Green, and J. N. Vaughn, Campton.

LETCHER COUNTY.

WHITEHORN, June 6.—Our circuit court has been in session since May 16. We are having one of the most quiet courts ever held here. No disturbance, no disorder, no drunkenness. Our grand jury is doing good work. About 140 indictments have been returned to date, and the number will probably reach 200. The offenses are mainly liquor, concealed weapons, bribery, &c. The common wealth's docket has been very large, and consequently but few civil suits have been tried. Judge Lilly is proving to be a terror to law-breakers. Eight convicts are now awaiting transportation to Frankfort. Sam'l and Elijah Wright, sentenced for twenty-one years each at the last term of this court, for killing Uncle Bill Wright, and granted a new trial, have again been convicted. This time they each go for five years. Wm. Wright, an actor in the crime, has also been convicted and sentenced for five years.

Stephen Isom, charged with murder, was acquitted.

James Quillen, for hog-stealing, gets one year in the penitentiary.

Randolph Polley, grand larceny, one year. His has been quite a notorious career, filled with hundreds of offenses, many of them felonious. But he has been run in at last, and will now have a chance to learn a trade whereby he can earn an honest living for the rest of his life. His hair is growing white with the frosts of many winters, and it is quite humiliating to see one growing old to be dragged to a felon's cell, when his old age should have been crowned with virtue and honor.

James Bates gets one year for robbing a store.

Martin Holeomb gets one year for aiding prisoners to escape jail.

George M. Venters gets one year for kidnapping. More soon.

UNCLE REMUS.

Thousands of people suffer with backache, not knowing that in most cases, it is a symptom of diseased kidneys and liver, which plasters and lotions cannot heal. The best and safest remedy is Dr. J. H. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm, $1.00 per bottle. Sold by G. B. Swango, Hazel Green, and J. N. Vaughn, Campton.

John A. Henry, 1/2, here taking pictures. John Fields, near this place, lost a good mule yesterday by getting its leg broken.

Miss Malley James of Wolfe county is visiting friends at this place.

Member State Board of Equalization for 10th District of Kentucky.

→ OFFICE OF ←

CORNWELL, KY., MAY 26, 1887.

To THE CITIZENS AND TAX-PAYERS OF THE 10TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT:

Your member desires to call your attention to some errors in assessing the property in this district, and more especially the lands. It is a custom in the mountain counties to list their lands at a fair cash value for the boundary line claims. But in so doing they over-estimate the acres. The actual settlers always list their lands well, and the non-residents or land speculators are trying to get their lands in at about one-fourth of its value, and by this means the general average is reduced below a fair cash value on the whole county. I wish to call the attention of the county officials to this, and let the County Judge appoint men as supervisors of the Assessor's Books that will bring all the non-residents' lands up to a standard equal to the actual settlers, and when this is done all the mountain counties in this district will get a deduction on their taxes. I know it is a custom in the mountain counties to guess at the boundaries of land. There is not one man in fifty that knows the number of acres of land in his boundary. It is bought and sold without measuring it. They say so many acres, more or less. And it is always over-estimated. A man will list 500 acres at $2.00 per acre, as he supposes, which is $1,000. Now make a survey of the land, and we have about 400 acres; many times even less. Now divide $1,000 by 400 acres, and we have land worth $2.50 per acre. I find that there are counties in this district listing as much as 200,000 acres more land than there is in the county. I find an increase this year in eleven counties over last year of 724,658 acres. Now, count this at $2.00 per acre and we have the sum of $1,449,316 worth of land that the people have over-estimated themselves with which they should not have done. I would respectfully ask the people to look well to their own interests, and in the future to not over-estimate their lands in acres, for according to the workings of the Board, each county has to pay a fixed price per acre for all the land listed in the county; and when you over-estimate the acres you cut the average down and tax yourselves unjustly. It is enough to satisfy any man, if he will examine the report of the Board and see how the mountain counties list their live stock. This ought to convince them that they list their land at a fair cash value. If you will please examine the Assessors' books of the bluegrass counties, and then compare them with the mountain counties, you will readily see that a man with a tract of land of 100 to 200 acres, two horses, one yoke of work cattle, two cows, ten hogs and fifteen sheep will list his property at what he will take for it in cash. Now, take a man with 500 acres of bluegrass land, and it will be well stocked. He will list his property at about half he will sell it for. I hope to be able to see the most of the County Assessors before they begin their work this fall in this district, and have a talk with them about their duties to the people and to themselves. I said publicly that they did not know that the acres had anything to do with the list, but they always list it at what it is worth without regard to acres. I will say in conclusion, don't over-estimate the acres of land when you don't know the number of acres. Get down, so you get a true list of acres as well as a true value of the boundary.

I am, very respectfully yours,

KNOTT COUNTY.

HINDMAN, June 1.—Having made an arrangement to act as correspondent and agent to your paper from this locality, I thought I would make the attempt, hoping that you will bear with me in my awkwardness.

There is quite a boom in this section in lands, mineral and timber.

The vast amount of coal, mineral and timber in our county is attracting the attention of Eastern capitalists, and I think in time will rank her among the wealthiest counties in the State. There are several real estate agents in our county buying coal, mineral and timber lands for New York capitalists. Several of our citizens have mineral fever, among them J. M. Bailey, N. G. Bailey, T. C. Higgins, R. S. May and Leslie Johnson.

We have a nice little village and more pretty girls than you can shake a stick at. A Sunday school recently organized in the town has quite a good attendance. The Knott County Sunday School Union has been organized with H. F. Johnson president, Geo. Clark vice-president, F. Allen secretary, and P. M. Duke and A. J. Coburn executive committee. There will be a County Sunday school convention held at Frankfort on the 4th Saturday in this month.

The people here are busily making preparations for circuit court, which convenes on the 6th inst. Several parties having business in the court feel a sickening sensation at the thought of its near approach. They know their election is sure.

Ex-Courthouse Judge of Knott, D. W. Calburn, died on the 29th of May, at his residence one mile from Hindman court house. He leaves a wife and many friends to mourn their loss.
